QUALIFIED WITHDRAWAL GUIDELINES

• The ScholarShare Program will only send the amount withdrawn directly to the school you are attending.

• Your school must be an “eligible educational institution: as defined in Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code. An “eligible educational institution” is a post-secondary institution that is eligible to participate in the Department of Education’s Title IV financial aid programs. First check to ensure your school is participating in these financial aid programs by contacting your school. Alternatively, you can enter the school name and location on the web page listed below, but you must still contact the school to verify the listing on the web site. The ScholarShare Trust cannot guarantee that the web site is accurate or contains the most current information.

• You are NOT required to submit bills, receipts or other substantiation of qualified higher education expenses along with this Form.

Qualified Higher Education Expenses are:

• Tuition and fees,
• Costs of books, supplies and equipment required for the enrollment or attendance of the student at an eligible educational institution, and
• Certain amounts for room and board.

Use of Withdrawn Funds for Room and Board:
You are required to pay federal income taxes on the portion of your withdrawal used for room and board in the tax year it was withdrawn. Section 529 of the Internal Revenue Code requires that withdrawals from the ScholarShare Trust for room and board costs do not exceed certain limits. You must be enrolled in a certificate-granting program at least half-time. For students living at home with parents, as well as for students not living in campus-provided housing, the student’s Eligible Educational Institution “cost of attendance” allowance for federal financial aid programs will be the room and board amount treated as a qualified expense. For students living on campus, the amount of room and board treated as a qualified expense can be the actual amount charged to the student, if it is greater than the “cost of attendance” allowance.

Return of Withdrawn Funds: You must return to the ScholarShare Trust any portion of a qualified withdrawal that is refunded by your school to you (or anyone else on your behalf) and not immediately used by you for other qualified higher education expenses for redeposit in the Student Scholarship Account.

• Tax Considerations: The Governor’s Scholarship Programs have been designed so that scholarship awards, including the earnings, used for certain qualified higher education expenses while a student is pursuing a degree, will not be subject to federal income taxation. Pursuing a degree is defined as a student (full or part-time) who:

1. Attends a primary or secondary school or is pursuing a degree at a college or university, or
2. Attends an eligible educational institution that is authorized to provide:
   • A program that is acceptable for full credit toward a bachelor’s or higher degree or
   • A program of training to prepare students for gainful employment in a recognized occupation.

Any portion of the awards or earnings withdrawn as payment of room and board costs will be subject to federal income tax in the tax year it was withdrawn. Students must report such amount to the Internal Revenue Service when filing their tax return. Similarly, any portion of a scholarship award used to pay for qualified higher education expenses at correspondence schools may not be eligible for federal tax-exempt treatment.

Notwithstanding the design of the Governor’s Scholarship Programs, the Internal Revenue Service could take the position that all scholarship awards are subject to federal income taxation in the year the student is notified of the award. Students and their families should consult their tax advisors regarding the federal tax treatment of scholarship awards.

California law provides that these scholarship awards, including the earnings (excluding any portion of the award used for payment for room and board costs) are exempt from California income tax.
